Webinar (Internet – based On-line Seminar)

Students of the M.Sc., Biotechnology Program are often given opportunity to listen to foreign scientists who talk on different aspects of the Techniques of Animal Cell Culture and Practices. The Webinar is hosted by the Corning Incorporated Life Sciences, Lowell, USA. This online program was made available through the 8 mbps high speed Internet connectivity available in the Department.

Two Days Hands-on Training in Animal Cell Culture

Animal Cell Culture technique has touched upon every human life through its Products and Services, one of which and also the first is the 'Polio Vaccine'. The technique has largely been in the dark without much exposure to the public like its laboratory infrastructural requirements itself. However, the Department of Biotechnology and its faculty have not left the students without getting proper training in this technique. To provide this facility as a platform for the students of other institutions, the Department has been organizing the 'Two-Days Hands-on Training Workshop' since 2008. Breaking formalities in the yearly conduct of the Workshop and to meet the demands from the participants providing quality training, the Workshop was conducted three times in consecutive weekends in the month of August 2009 as convened under the Headship of Dr. M.M. Shahul Hameed who was instrumental in materializing the training program. Over a dozen students from the Bharathidasan University, Tiruchirappalli who were in M.Sc., Biotechnology Program attended the Workshop to learn the techniques. Among others who attended the Workshop, there were students from various faculty such as Microbiology, Biotechnology, Biochemistry and Pharmacy. Participants were from different colleges such as Sree Narayana Guru College, Coimbatore, NGP College of Arts and Science, Coimbatore, KMCH College of Pharmacy, Coimbatore, SNR Sons College Coimbatore, SNMV College of Arts and Science, Coimbatore, Kongu Arts and Science College, Erode, A.V.C College (Autonomous), Mayiladuthurai, Thanthai Hans Roever College, Perambalur and Annai College of Arts and Science, Kumbakonam. Besides, a research scholar and alumnus of our College, Mr. N. Anis Ahamed, from the Department of Microbiology, King Saud University, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia was one among the participant who came to learn the technique from us. On the whole, 60 participants from various Departments and Institutions attended the workshop and were trained by Mr. M.S. Mohamed Jaabir and Mr. S. Senthil Kumar with their team of student volunteers.

Two Days Hands-on Training in Fermentor Operations and Analysis

'White Biotechnology' as the avenue of industrial application of Biotechnology is popularly called, deals with many products and services ranging from beverages to medicine and clothing to prevention of pollution. The expertise and instrumentation for this commercial sector based technology is a 'Fermentor' or a 'Bioreactor'. As a Biotechnologist or a Microbiologist, it becomes indispensable to master the skills when working with a complex yet fine tuned gadget called 'Fermentation System'. Our Department known for its strength in this area, houses a complete laboratory scale fully automated and computer controlled indigenous model of the Fermentation System. The technique involves the operations and analysis of various production mechanisms using different types of bacterial / fungal / plant or animal cells. When our students master this skill based technique in their regular curriculum of M.Sc., Biotechnology and PGDFT program, a Two-Day Hands-on training Workshop was conducted between 8th and 9th August 2009, to train the students from other institutions. The workshop was convened by Dr. M.M. Shahul Hameed while Mr. S. Senthil Kumar and Mr. M.S. Mohamed Jaabir acted as the resource persons to provide practical training on it with their team of student volunteers. Students from Anna University, Tiruchirappalli, Annai College of Arts and Science, Kumbakonam, Gem-Gates College, Athur, Salem District, and AVC College, Mayiladuthurai participated and benefited from it.
